_ Decreasing EU sugar prices

- EU sugar prices negotiated since 2024 have seen a sharp decline compared to 2023 levels, leading to lower margins in H1

_ Brazilian crop impacted by lower agricultural yields, as anticipated

- Lower yields as result of weather conditions impacting yields in the Brazil Center-South region

_ Starch and sweeteners prices

- Lower prices since Q4 24/25

_ USD depreciation against the euro is putting downward pressure on European prices.

Note: EU estimate is for beet & cane sugar only, i.e., it excludes the beet sugar production equivalent from ethanol.

Current Situation (2024/25):

- ✓ The season ended with an estimated deficit of 2.0Mt driven mostly by lower production in India (26.1Mt: -6.1Mt YoY), Pakistan (5.8Mt: -1.0Mt YoY) and Brazil CS (39.8Mt 25/26 local crop: -0.4Mt YoY).

Outlook (2025/26):

- ✓ This campaign is expected to return to surplus, driven mostly by a recovery in production (+6.8Mt) stronger than the expected recovery in consumption (+2.4Mt)
- ✓ India is expected to be the main contributor to this recovery (+5.0Mt to 31.1Mt), assuming favorable weather.
- ✓ Brazil-CS also has an expectation of higher production in 26/27 local crop (+0.8Mt YoY to 40.6Mt) which falls within the 25/26 world crop.

Supply & Demand Risk Flags

- ✓ Importing countries: current sugar prices below production cost of all producers could be seen as a buying opportunity for rebuilding stocks.
- ✓ Brazil crop concerns: current low prices could reduce planting and fertilizers application for cane. Both could mean a risk of lower output for the next two crops.
- ✓ Brazil ethanol Parity: sugar prices below ethanol parity could drive sugar production even lower supported by strong demand at the pump, current historical low stocks and possibility of higher exports (price support at peak of campaign).
- ✓ India's Production Risks: although early forecasts point to a recovery in India's sugar output, rising instances of crop diseases and pest infestations could pose downside risks to the 2025/26 production outlook.
- ✓ Consumption: world consumption has failed to have a strong recovery in past years which means a higher probability of demand increase to come.

Business perspectives 2025/26

SUGAR AND RENEWABLES EUROPE

- Tereos sugar beet campaign

_ A rebound of the selling prices from October 26 was expected based on the reduction of the European sugar beet planted area, but due to very favorable weather conditions yields are high, leading to stable prices for the period Oct 25 – Sep 26 compared to levels negotiated last year for Oct 24 – Sep 25

- Sugar prices in Europe

_ As we anticipated in previous releases, EU sugar prices negotiated since 2024 have seen a sharp decline compared to 2023/24 levels, which will lead to lower margins in 2025/26

SUGAR AND RENEWABLES INTERNATIONAL

- Sugarcane crushing volume

_ As expected, a decrease by 10% of the sugarcane crushing volume is seen for the crop 25/26 as result of weather conditions impacting yields in the Brazil Center-South region

- Increasing ethanol prices and world sugar prices lower than in 2024

_ Decreasing world sugar prices since the beginning of the year, and downward pressure for the coming months; we have sped up our hedging policy accordingly

STARCH, SWEETENERS AND RENEWABLES

- Selling volumes recovery should lead to some pressure in margins

_ The recovery in sales volumes following the halt of the Nesle plant is expected to put pressure on both selling prices and margins

Continued deployment of ambitious performance improvement initiatives on our 3 divisions

_ Improvements being deployed, covering industrial competitiveness (including energy consumption), SG&A optimization and agricultural performance

Medium-term targets and short-term perspectives

Medium-term view

From a medium-term perspective, Tereos has set the following targets:

Recurring EBIT margin

> 5%

Free cash flow before changes in working capital

Positive

Debt leverage ratio

< 3x

Potential conjunctural, short-term deviations

The recurring EBIT margin, financial leverage, and cash flow are key performance indicators for the Group. These target levels are pursued with a structural approach and a medium-term outlook.

However, due to the cyclical nature of the markets in which Tereos operates, temporary deviations may occur depending on the phase of the cycle in our various sectors.

The fiscal year 2025/26 will illustrate such a situation, and therefore, we anticipate:

Since Oct 2024, the price decline in Europe has sharply reduced our recurring EBIT margins and cash-flow for 25/26, pushing them well below our targets. As the expected EU sugar price rebound will not materialize in the 25/26 campaign (Oct 25–Sep 26 sales), margin recovery is now deferred to the period starting in Oct 2026.

As a result, leverage in 25/26 is expected to peak temporarily at around 6.0x.

Tereos remains committed to its medium and long-term objectives and will continue to actively manage its indebtedness, leverage, and balance sheet strength to minimize short-term risks.
